When I was thought to be the richest man in the village - makes me suspicious of those "rich lists" we see regularly in our own Sunday papers - I was asked to take in an infant orphan for few months. You'd be used to odd requests there. In the desire to seem human and humane you'd give in to many of them. But this one seemed beyond odd and well into no-go land. But a few questions showed me a vista a lot less alarming. The helpless creature of God I was being asked to rear was not a dear baby but a baby deer, an antelope a few days old. The animal-welfare credentials of the men who brought the baby to me were not beyond question. They had shot his mother for the pot. Still they had with them the pitiable little creature and were putting it up to me to give him a chance of a future. In their opinion I was fitted for the parenting role by the fact that I was known to sometimes visit a town where powdered milk could be got and that they wouldn't have to pay for it. Relief that it wasn't a human orphan I was being offered, along with an agricultural background, made me accept. Spoon-feeding began that day. Soon I was seen, maybe a bit furtive, purchasing a baby bottle complete with teat. The orphan took to this appliance with pleasing enthusiasm and thrived. It was a pleasure to see how quickly he grew strong. The wobbly matchstick legs that had been handed to me were still matchstick but soon propelled the creature to feats of speed and agility. He'd leap high into the air for the mere fun of it. When running he'd bound over invisible fences and land safely every time to rocket away once more. The gazelle of the Song of Solomon "leaping over the mountains" would have nothing on him. This orphan prospered. He began to go foraging but would come back for his milk. His absences grew longer and longer. The last I saw of him was a blur of speed as he passed through our yard pursued by three dogs. I'm glad to report that our runner seemed in control of the race. He was at his ease - cruising, as a race commentator would say, with his opponents "hard at it to keep sight of the leader." I got the impression they might even pull up beaten well before the final fence. "Orphan" is a powerful image for things as the should not be. Abandonment of the child was the worst thing. A parentless child was most to be pitied. The orphan and the widow were the ones who had strongest claim on the Lord's protection in the Bible, having no one else to look after their interests. Without a strong protector above or a social safety net below they were the most easily abused of humankind. "Unspoilt religion in the eyes of God is this: coming to the help of orphans and widows....." (Jas 1:27)

Sometimes now we may feel we're sailing in a ship poorly captained or weakly crewed, hearing the regular splash of "man overboard." As he was about to leave his anxious friends on his return to the Father Jesus promises us "I will not leave you orphans." The Spirit of God is, he promised, the greatest of lifejackets. We may sometimes be intended quarry but we're not victims. I suppose that's what Peter has in mind as he says "Have your answer ready for those who ask the reason for the hope that's in you."

Exam Prayer to St. Rita

St. Rita, Saint of the Impossible, bring serenity to my mind and heart
while I take my exams.

Give me a quiet confidence in my gifts and talents.

Remind me of my dignity and preciousness
in a world where we compete in exams, for jobs,
for a place in life.

Anoint my memory with the power of recall.

Keep me calm on the day of my exams.

May my results be for enrichment of my life and the education of my heart.

We ask this prayer through Christ our Lord.
Amen.

Exam Mass at Knock Shrine:

For all students preparing for exams and their families. Take some time out from your studies for a quiet moment to ask for God's strength and guidance as you move through your exam period.

Bring your pencil case to have it blessed.
June 5th, 7.30pm, Knock Basilica.

Prayer to the Holy Spirit

Come Holy Spirit

Fill the hearts of your faithful and kindle in them the fire of your love

Send forth your Spirit and they shall be created.

And you will renew the face of the earth.

Feast of St. Rita of Cascia

We celebrate the Feast of St. Rita of Cascia on Monday 22nd May here in St. Augustine's Church. An exceptional Saint a young widow who suffered years at the centre of family feuds in medieval Italy. A young woman yearning to become a religious; a nun in Cascia who bore the thorn of the Crucified; a mystic, whose love for Christ has marked her out as exceptional. As the Saint of the Impossible people pray to her for their many intentions and also for those doing exams.

We will celebrate this feast on Monday 22nd with the Blessing of the Roses and Novena prayers at the 10.15am & 4.00pm Masses.

Pentecost Sunday 28th May

As we move forward during this Celebration time of the Risen Lord we begin to glimpse horizons of the Ascension and Pentecost: two great moments in our Faith Story. Read the Gospel accounts and the Acts of the Apostles to catch the lively spirit of the early Christian community and see how the new Christians were caught up in the "unbelievable" events that were so powerfully affecting their daily lives.
